RANUNCULUS—Queen of Bulb Flowers—

Our fine strain of French Hybrids predominate in the fine red, pink, yellow and pastel shades and average larger than the ordinary varieties. We ship flowers to all parts of the United States and they will usually keep for a week to ten days after reaching their destination, as they are one of the best early spring flowers for cutting. We plant the bulk of our crop in October, but they may be planted in any of the fall months, thereby having them bloom at various periods in the spring. In colder parts of the country the bulbs should be planted as early in the spring as possible to cultivate the ground, as any late frosts will not harm them. The soil should be well prepared by frequent cultivation—any fertilizer that is in the soil should be leached out with thorough watering so that no heat is in the ground from the fertilizer. Any good dairy or barnyard manure can be used. Plant the dry bulbs with the claws downward, either in double rows or massed beds in the full sun, to a depth of four to six inches. If the ground is then covered with sand or well-rotted manure the bulbs will do much better. After planting, saturate and water every few days.

Ranunculi seed may be planted the same time as the bulbs, and will bloom a little later than those grown from bulbs and so would make a good follow-up with the bulbs, although the flowers are not quite as large. After the seed has been sown it should be covered with sand or leaf-mold and should then be rolled lightly to bring the seed in good contact with the soil. Water once or twice daily, if dry, until the seed comes up, which requires from three to five weeks. Ranunculus can be grown anywhere in the United States, as they will stand considerable cold, but where the winters are severe they should be planted in the early spring. After the bulbs are through blooming, and the stalks are brown and dry, they may be dug and the bulbs stored in a dry place out of the sun and wind. The divisions may be taken from the parent bulb. All the bulbs will bloom, regardless of the size, but the larger the bulb the more flowers it will produce. Fifty to sixty flowers are not unusual for our largest bulbs to bear.

SPARAXIS—

Doz., 60c; 100, $4.00

TRITONIA CROCATATA—

This an old, and perhaps somewhat neglected, bulb that has recently received much attention as one of the most brilliant and interesting of winter and spring bulbs. It has the character of the Freesia, but the flower spike is more like the Montbrettia. The stems are long and upright. The flowers are salmon in color and fine for their keeping qualities.

Doz., 75c; 100, $5.50

TUBEROSES—

The flowers are creamy white, borne on stiff, upright stems and are very fragrant. They make a good cut flower and will keep very well. The bulbs will not be ready for delivery until March.

Doz., $1.00; 100, $8.00

TULIPS—Darwin Type—

We have found this variety of tulip to be the most satisfactory here of all the many species, and for a gorgeous display of early spring flowers cannot be excelled. The Darwin tulips grow taller than tulips usually do, and the flowers are large in size. They are very hardy and require little attention, but do like a rich soil that has not been fertilized too recently, unless the fertilizer has been thoroughly mixed with the soil and well watered.

We have a large selection of the bulbs and grow thousands of them every year for potting and cutting. The bulbs will bloom for a period of three weeks and sometimes longer. After the bulbs are planted we cover the ground with cow manure as a shade from the sun. Tulips can be grown in a little shade but do much better in the full sunlight. The soil should be well cultivated and the bulbs planted in October and November. Cover the crown of the bulb to a depth of four inches in heavy soil and five inches in a lighter soil, spacing them six inches apart, if planted in massed beds. Cover the ground with good mulch and keep well watered. If three or four of the bulbs are planted in a seven-inch pot and the pot then plunged in sand or soil up to the top, the pot may be taken up a short time before the bulbs bloom and they will make a good house plant for a long time. The bulbs should be put in the ground after the pot of bulbs are through blooming. The following are some of the select varieties:
